

ANSWER

وَالشَّفَعِ

and by the even... [89:3]

COMMENTARY

(and by the even... 89:3). The Qur'ān has not specified what the words 'the even' [...] refer to. Therefore, the commentators have assigned different interpretations to them. Nevertheless, it has been mentioned in a Prophetic Hadith narrated by Abū-z-Zubair from Sayyidnā Jābir radi'allāhu 'anhu thus: '[...] and ash-shaf refers to the Day of Sacrifice [because it falls on the 10th day of Dhul Hijjah]'

Qurtubī cites this narration and confirms that its chain of authorities is more authentic than the other tradition narrated by Sayyidnā 'Imrān Ibn Husain radi'allāhu 'anhu which talks about... even [two/four] units of prayers. Therefore, Sayyidnā Ibn 'Abbās radi'allāhu 'anhu 'Ikramah and Nahhās rahimahumā Allah have preferred the view that 'even' refers to the Day of Sacrifice [...].

Some commentators like Ibn Sīrīn, Masrūq, Abū Sālih and Qatādah rahimahumā Allah said that 'even' refers to the entire creation, because Allah has created them in pairs, and thus He says: 'And from everything We have created (a pair of) two kinds [51:49] - belief/disbelief, happiness/unhappiness, light/darkness, night/day, cold/heat, sky/earth, human/Jinn and male/female as against all of these pairs [...].

And Allah Ta'ālā knows best.

